10	Leadership Development & Community Organising?	RN provided a brief overview of what community organising is: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Community organising is a tactic used for campaigning and collective democratic action, and involves building relationships (what we call relational power) through common interests and shared values (what we call self-interest). • Relationships (relational power) are built through having 121 meetings with others, and discussing and sharing common interests and shared values, using storytelling skills. • Other key aspects of community organising involve leadership development and building capacity. RN noted the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • As committee members may be aware, particularly from training for decision-making committees earlier in the year and updates in committee meetings, the Student Voice Team have been working on incorporating community organising principles into different areas of work, such as elections, decision-making, student-led campaigns and the Reps System. • Community organising has a lot of applicability to these different areas as it can, and has, helped with engagement, inclusion and capacity building. • One very good example of where it has worked well is the work of the Black Voices Campaign. RN noted that the Student Voice Team are still continuing to incorporate community organising, in particular for decision-making and elections, and if members are interested in getting involved with this work, would like to find out more, and/or have any questions, to contact herself (r.nadeem@guild.bham.ac.uk) and Adam Dorey (a.dorey@guild.bham.ac.uk) and both would be happy to arrange a chat. RN noted that she will circulate contact details - ACTION	4:16pm-4:22pm
